IMPLEMENTING GUIDELINES OF PROGRAM PaG-UBAY: PARENTS AND GUARDIANS UPHOLDING BAYANIHAN TO ASSIST THE YOUNG

I. Rationale and Background

The Elementary Education plays a foundational role in a child's holistic development and lifelong learning. As young learners embark on their academic journey, parental and guardians' presence and active engagement in school deeply influence adjustment, school readiness, and long-term success. Many researches have indicated that parent involvement, starting as early as preschool years has positive effects on acquiring academic skills (Van Voorhis et al. 2013; Wilder, 2014). Parental activities that are effectively planned and well-implemented resulted in substantial benefits to children, as they achieved more regardless of ethnic or racial background, socioeconomic status, or parents' education level as reported by Ogunkula (2008). This is consistent with the 1987 Philippine Constitution, Article IV, Sections 1–2, which underscores the value of nurturing natural-born Filipino citizens who are prepared to contribute meaningfully to society.

Moreover, Republic Act No. 9155, or the Governance of Basic Education Act of 2001, highlights the shared responsibility of schools, parents, and communities in ensuring quality education, thereby affirming the critical role of families in the educational journey of young learners. Finally, the Enhanced Basic Education Act of 2013 (RA 10533) institutionalizes Kindergarten as the mandatory entry stage of formal education within the K to 12 Basic Education Program, emphasizing a learner-centered and developmentally appropriate curriculum that is enriched when supported by active parental engagement.

Complementing these legal bases, PaG-UBAY, reflects the cultural value of bayanihan and the Region's commitment to fostering a supportive learning environment through meaningful parent involvement, thereby reinforcing the vital partnership of families, schools, and communities in children's early learning and academic success.

Pag-ubay is a Hiligaynon term which means "to guide" or "to be alongside" reflects a deep cultural value of togetherness, support, and shared journey, especially in times of learning, growth, and transition. In the context of early childhood education, the presence and involvement of parents and guardians play a crucial role in shaping a child's learning experiences, emotional development, and readiness for formal education. The Program PaG-UBAY embodies the collaborative spirit by encouraging parents to be physically present, emotionally engaged, and actively supportive of the daily learning routines in Elementary Education Classrooms.

The program affirms the DepEd Region VI's commitment to building inclusive, culturally grounded, and community-driven initiatives that recognize parents not just as supporters, but as co-educators and companions in the formative years of a child's education. The program promotes strong partnership efforts where teachers, parents, and guardians "walk together" in the journey of learning, ensuring that no child is left behind—especially in their most critical stage of growth.

In essence, the Program PaG-UBAY is more than just a program, title it embodies the Bayanihan spirit, the value of pakigbahin or shared responsibility and the belief that education thrives when the community moves together to develop champion learners.

II. Scope

The Program PaG-UBAY shall be implemented across all public elementary schools in DepEd Region VI specifically in kindergarten classes. Direct beneficiaries of the program are kindergarten learners. This will involve parents, guardians and community members who are willing to give voluntary services to enrolled Kindergarten pupils in public schools. It will also include the kindergarten teachers and school heads serving as program implementers and coordinators, Public Schools District Supervisors, Education Program Supervisors in-charge of Kindergarten and Values Education, focal persons in SNED and child protection program, partnership and linkages, Education program specialists at the Schools Division and Regional Offices for monitoring and technical assistance.

The program shall include (a) classroom assistance to kindergarten teachers with the daily teaching and learning routines, managing learning materials, supporting learners during activities; (b) child development support by guiding social behavior, reinforcing values, and providing physical care (for learners who are physically handicapped) and emotional care; (c) health and hygiene monitoring by assisting with handwashing, sanitation, and safe eating practices during feeding sessions; and (d) participation in school-based orientations, capacity-building sessions, and education activities of volunteer-parents, guardians and community members.

IV. Policy Statement

The Department of Education – Region VI upholds the vital role of parents and guardians as active partners in the holistic development of young learners. Guided by the principles of inclusive, child-centered, and community-driven education, the Region establishes the Program PaG-UBAY as a strategic initiative to strengthen home-school-community partnership in support of kindergarten education.

The program mobilizes PaG-UBAY volunteers to assist in the day-to-day activities of kindergarten classes particularly in promoting learner-centered classroom, strengthening safety, health and hygiene practices, and reinforcing socio-emotional learning in the school and at home.

The DepEd Regional Office VI and its Schools Division Offices and all public elementary schools shall implement the Program PaG-UBAY in accordance with these regional guidelines, ensuring proper orientation, supervision, and appreciation of PaG-UBAY volunteers while upholding the child's rights, dignity, and safety at all times.

V. Objectives

a. Terminal Objective

The Program PaG-UBAY envisions a strengthened home-school-community partnership that empowers PaG-UBAY volunteers to serve as teachers-support, companions, and child development advocates, contributing to an inclusive, nurturing, and supportive learning environment that ensures school readiness, improved learner participation, and enhanced foundational skills for all kindergarten learners.

b. Enabling Objectives

To achieve its overarching goal, the Program PaG-UBAY has the following enabling objectives:

1. Institutionalize mechanisms for the recruitment, selection, and scheduling of PaG-UBAY volunteers ensuring proper coordination, transparency, and alignment with child protection policies.
2. Enhance classroom support and learning routines by engaging PaG-UBAY volunteers in daily tasks such as preparing learning materials, assisting during class activities, promoting health and hygiene, and supporting classroom management under teacher supervision.
3. Foster positive home-school-community relationships by promoting mutual respect, shared responsibility, and open communication between parents, teachers, and the school in support of kindergarten learners.
4. Promote community participation and bayanihan spirit by recognizing PaG-UBAY volunteerism as a valued contribution to early childhood education and overall school development.

5. Ensure the safety and protection of all learners by upholding child protection policy and ethical standards in the engagement of PaG-UBAY volunteers.

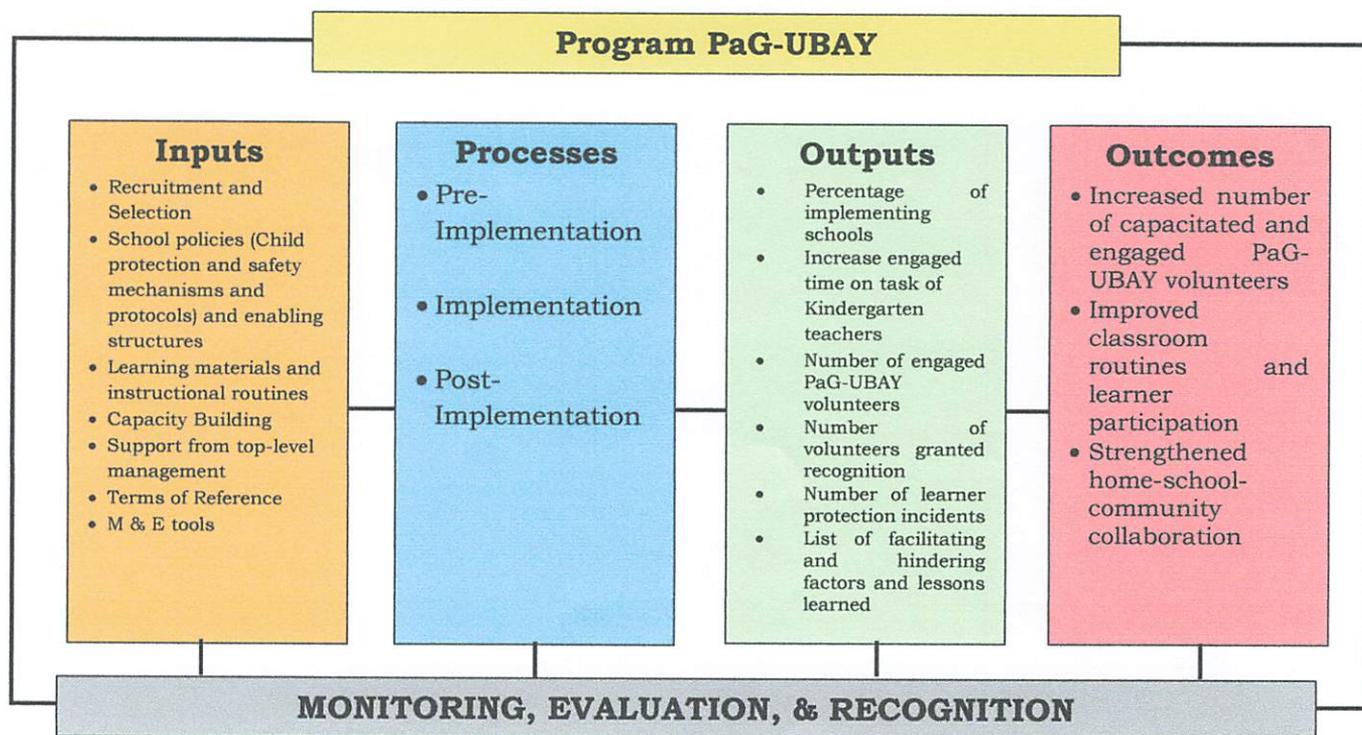

6. Monitor and evaluate the implementation of the program at the school, and Division levels through regular documentation, feedback mechanisms, and evidence-based reporting.

VI. Conceptual Framework

The Program PaG-UBAY is built on the belief that parents and guardians are essential partners in the learning journey of a child, especially in the formative years of kindergarten education. Derived from the Hiligaynon word "pag-ubay" - the program reflects the shared responsibility of families, schools, and communities in creating supportive, inclusive, and learner-centered environments.

The program is anchored on the systems theory that views the entire organization as interrelated and interconnected subsystems that operates seamlessly to elicit change in the entire organization. The organization exists and co-exists with both the internal and external environments that influence the various processes implemented by the system.

The following are the Key Components of the program: inputs, processes, outputs, and expected outcomes that ensure continuous improvement and responsiveness to emerging needs of the learners, stakeholders, and the school community.

The conceptual framework views volunteerism as a key enabler of quality early education, particularly in improving school readiness, learner participation, and psychosocial development. Through structured volunteer engagement, capacity-building, collaborative and feedback mechanism, Program PaG-UBAY operationalizes the home-school-community triad that supports every young learner's holistic growth.

The framework begins with the inputs, which serve as the foundational enablers of program implementation. These inputs include recruitment and selection of volunteers, adherence to school policies on child protection and safety, and the provision of instructional routines and learning materials. Moreover, capacity-building initiatives, managerial support, and accountability tools such as terms of reference and monitoring instruments further strengthen the program's capacity to achieve its goals. Taken together, these elements ensure that the program is feasible and aligned with institutional mandates and the developmental needs of learners.

Building upon these inputs are the processes divided into three interconnected phases: pre-implementation, implementation, and post-implementation. Pre-implementation encompasses the preparatory work, such as conducting advocacy activities on the Program PaG-UBAY in terms of its nature and purpose, recruitment, selection, and capacity building of volunteers and implementers, and support from SDOs and DepED Regional Office VI. At the same time, the implementation refers to delivering the program and services through the deployment of PaG-UBAY volunteers, monitoring, and provision of technical assistance. Post-implementation, conversely, ensures the program is sustained and that the experiences of both implementers and volunteers are meaningfully translated through review and evaluation, as well as rewards and recognition.

As a result of these processes, the framework generates tangible outputs that provide evidence of progress. These include the percentage of implementing schools, the degree of kindergarten teacher engagement time on task, the number of PaG-UBAY volunteers, and the recognition of their contributions. In addition, the framework considers learner-centered indicators such as reported learner protection incidents, documentation of facilitating and hindering factors, and notable lessons learned. Thus, the outputs reflect accountability, transparency, and a strong commitment to evidence-based program improvement.

Consequently, these outputs lead to broader outcomes that signify lasting change. The outcomes envisioned include the expansion of a capacitated and engaged volunteers, the improvement of classroom routines and the increase of learner participation, and the strengthening of home-school-community collaboration. These outcomes highlight the enduring relevance of bayanihan as a socio-cultural mechanism for collective action, while also underscoring a transformative paradigm in education where parents and guardians become co-educators and partners in school governance.

Finally, the entire framework is anchored in monitoring, evaluation, and recognition, encompassing all program implementation stages. Monitoring and evaluation serve as continuous feedback mechanisms ensuring alignment with goals, while recognition is a driver that sustains and encourages volunteer participation. By integrating these elements, the program establishes a structured system of implementation, accountability, and motivation, thereby enhancing long-term program viability.

In synthesis, the Program PaG-UBAY conceptual framework reflects a holistic, participatory, and systems-oriented approach to program implementation. It positions parents and guardians as stakeholders and vital and active agents of change in learner development and school-community collaboration. By connecting inputs, processes, outputs, and outcomes through monitoring, evaluation, and recognition, the framework demonstrates an iterative cycle of implementation throughout the stages. Thus, it makes sense in theory and works in practice, which may serve as a model for other communities to follow with their own education programs.
